

Chapter one the Preparation

One cold autumn night on August 15, 2006, a family of three was eating dinner that night while the beautiful sunset is going down behind the ocean waves. Suddenly, the news report comes on the T.V.; the weatherman reported they're very strong winds and a tropical storm heading towards the Florida Keys. Andy says, "There is a storm a coming." I think we better head for high land."

John, Andy's father, replies 'with confidence, "Oh we will fine." Those storms never really get here."

Elizabeth, Andy's mother says, "Listen to your father he knows what he's talking about." "Remember, he used to work for that big organization that predicts the weather."

Andy replies back to his mother, "Okay mom."

Well that night, when they all went to sleep, the tropical storm came closer and closer. By that morning, Andy woke up and started to look outside his window. He was devastated what the winds of the storm have already down to the Keys. The trees were knocked down onto cars crushing them instantly. Some cars on the road, which has leaves and power lines down, where flipped over. Andy thought, I can't believe all this have already happen and the storm isn't here yet.

Elizabeth came running in his room yelling, "Get up we're leaving for high hills before we get stuck in this storm!"

Andy says with a grunt, "Okay mom." While that was taking place

Andy's father John was getting the Lincoln Navigator ready to leave on there long journey.

Good ideas. Check the circled areas for grammar problems. The circled sentence needs work. Read it to yourself.